

The Thinking Environment in Higher Education: A Day of Practice and Discovery

Hello, my name is Sheila Ball from Leeds Beckett University.

My workshop will focus on how Nancy Klein's Thinking Environment was used in a professional learning programme to create the cultural conditions for post-graduate researchers and supervisors to explore doctoral education.

After a brief presentation about the programme, participants will have an opportunity to share their experiences of supporting doctoral education.

Key insights from post-graduate researchers and supervisors from Leeds Beckett University who participated in the program will be presented followed by an opportunity to engage in Thinking Pairs.

Finally, facilitated discussion will enable participants to think more about how the Thinking Environment might support elements of doctoral education.
